BEN RIVERS: THE TWO EYES ARE NOT BROTHERS

Television Centre, White City, London W12 7RJ
26 June - 31 August 2015

The Two Eyes Are Not Brothers, a new, site-specific installation by British artist and filmmaker Ben Rivers', produced by Jacqui Davies and commissioned by Artangel and BBC Radio 4, will open at Television Centre on 26 June.

The installation is the first stage in Rivers' most ambitious cinematic work to date and will be set among the spaces used by the BBC to construct scenery and props for television drama since 1960. Shot against the wild landscape of the Atlas Mountains, Rivers' project excavates the illusion of filmmaking through the integration of behind-the-scenes footage on two other film productions recently shot in Morocco by artist Shezad Dawood and filmmaker Oliver Laxe. This abstracted footage of The Two Eyes Are Not Brothers is projected inside a sequence of found interiors and new structures built from redundant film sets.

Exhibition open:

Tuesday – Friday 18.00 – 21.30

Saturday and Sunday 14.00 – 20.00

Entry is Free

The first exhibition of Richard Billingham's new film installation, Ray, is now open as part of Glynn Vivian Art Gallery's Offsite Programme.

Ray sees artist Richard Billingham return to the striking photographs that he captured of his family during Thatcher-era Britain. At times shocking and laced with an unsettling humour, Ray is a film about addiction, loneliness and control.

Ray forms part of a larger project by Billingham, further details of which can be found here
